Synchronized skating is a highly technical form of team skating characterized by speed, accuracy, intricate formations and transitions. Teams of 8–20 skaters perform side by side on the ice. At the junior and senior levels, teams perform one 2:50 short program and one 4:00 or 4:30 free skate in competition.

COMPETITIVE LEVELS

There are eight competitive levels for synchronized skating within the U.S. Figure Skating structure:

- Juvenile
- Intermediate
- Novice
- Junior
- Senior
- Collegiate
- Adult
- Masters

The juvenile through senior levels are skill-based, and all members on a team must pass level-specific moves in the field tests to participate in that discipline. The collegiate level is for college teams, while the masters and adult levels are for skaters aged 25 and 18 and over, respectively. In addition, there are eight developmental levels that prepare athletes for competition at the national level.

COMPETITIONS & QUALIFYING

Teams can participate in any nonqualifying competitions they choose to enter. Those teams wishing to compete in the U.S. Figure Skating qualifying pipeline must start at the sectional championships. By finishing in the top four at the sectional, teams in the competitive levels above qualify for the U.S. Synchronized Skating Championships. Based on performances and placements from this event, teams are nominated to the U.S. Synchronized Skating Team and assigned to international competitions.

MEMBERSHIP

The membership of U.S. Figure Skating, at more than 165,000 members, has embraced synchronized skating as more than 579 teams register and compete each year.

SYNCHRONIZED SKATING HISTORICAL TIMELINE

1956 — Dr. Richard Porter of Ann Arbor, Mich., organized a group of skaters to form a team.

1976 — The first competition for team skating was held in Ann Arbor, Mich.

1984 — The first U.S. Synchronized Team Skating Championships were held in Bowling Green, Ohio.

1989 — The first international synchronized skating competition was held in Molndal, Sweden, with seven nations represented.

1994 — The International Skating Union (ISU) officially recognized synchronized skating as a discipline of figure skating at the ISU Congress.

1996 — The first of four ISU World Synchronized Skating Challenge Cups was held in Boston, with 17 teams from 13 countries competing. The event, which was known as the unofficial World Championships, was last held in Gothenburg, Sweden, in 1999.

2000 — The first World Synchronized Skating Championships were held in Minneapolis.

2001 — The first ISU World Challenge Cup for Juniors was held in Neuchâtel, Switzerland.

2008 — U.S. Figure Skating hosted the 25th U.S. Synchronized Skating Championships in Providence, R.I.

2010 — U.S. Figure Skating hosted the World Synchronized Skating Championships in Colorado Springs, Colo., with 23 teams representing 18 countries.

COLLEGIATE SYNCHRONIZED SKATING

Skaters from different backgrounds find that there is no experience quite like being a member of a collegiate synchronized skating team. Synchronized skating veterans around the country are teaming up with freestyle skaters and ice dancers who are trying this exciting sport for the first time. College teams generally compete in one of three U.S. Figure Skating divisions: collegiate, open collegiate or senior.

Collegiate synchronized skating teams compete in non qualifying, qualifying and intercollegiate competitions. Teams that compete in the senior division are eligible to be selected for U.S. Figure Skating's international envelope system and may represent the United States at international events. Synchronized skating is now an event at the World University Games, and only teams made up of student-athletes may represent the United States at this competition.

There are a number of ways teams can be structured on college campuses, including club sports, student organizations or activities and varsity sports.

In 2013, 41 teams competed in U.S. qualifying competitions in the collegiate and open collegiate divisions. At the 2013 U.S. Synchronized Skating Championships, two universities were represented in the senior division and one was represented in the junior division.

WHAT ABOUT THE OLYMPIC WINTER GAMES?

Synchronized skating is the newest discipline of figure skating. It was first recognized by the International Skating Union (ISU) in 1994, and the first World Championships were held in 2000. It is the only figure skating discipline that is not yet part of the Olympic Winter Games.

There are no immediate plans or timetable for the sport's inclusion. In order for a sport to be added, it must first be recommended by the sport's international governing body, in this case the ISU, to the International Olympic Committee (IOC). This has not yet happened, as the sport needs further development and exposure around the world. However, with the popularity of the figure skating disciplines that are a part of the Olympic Winter Games, there is a bright future for synchronized skating.

U.S. Figure Skating's approach has been to put efforts into building the strongest U.S. program possible so that when/if synchronized skating is included in the Olympic Winter Games, U.S. teams will be prepared to stand on the podium.

SYNCHRONIZED SKATING AROUND THE WORLD

Synchronized skating started in the United States, but it has quickly spread around the world. In the past several years, 20 countries on five continents have participated in either the World Challenge Cup for Juniors (now called the Junior World Challenge Cup) or the World Synchronized Skating Championships. The Scandinavian countries have dominated the World Synchronized Skating Championships, winning 13 of the 14 World titles that have been awarded since the first event in 2000. Canada is the only other country to have reached the top of the podium, earning the 2009 World title. The United States is a strong presence on the world scene, having captured the silver medal at the 2007 World Synchronized Skating Championships, the bronze medal at the 2010-13 World Synchronized Skating Championships and the bronze medal at the 2006-07 and 2011 World Challenge Cup for Juniors.

Like all disciplines of figure skating, synchronized skating has transitioned to the international judging system (IJS). All intermediate, novice, junior, senior, collegiate and adult events are judged under the IJS.

Each level in synchronized skating has a defined “well-balanced program” that contains a set number of prescribed elements each team must perform in its free skate. Teams are given a technical elements score based on the specified difficulty and execution of those prescribed elements. Teams may perform additional elements; however, these will not be taken into consideration in their technical elements score. Teams are also given a program components score which takes into consideration skating skills, transitions, performance, choreography and musical interpretation. For levels judged under the old 6.0 system, the panel of judges will award two marks based on those concepts.

The IJS has two panels: A technical panel and a judging panel. The technical panel consists of a technical controller, a technical specialist and assistant technical specialist. This panel identifies the difficulty of each of the prescribed elements in the program. That difficulty level corresponds to a point value for each of the elements. The judging panel, which consists of three to seven judges, evaluates how well each of the elements was done on a scale of -3 to +3. A trimmed mean of the judges’ grades of execution for each element is factored with the points awarded for difficulty. Finally, each judge also gives a program components mark ranging from 0.25-10.00 for each of the following areas: skating skills, transitions, performance/execution, choreography and musical interpretation. Again, a trimmed mean is taken for each of the five components.

The total score for each team is computed by taking the technical elements score (the total points the team earned for difficulty factored with their grade of execution for each of their well-balanced program elements) and adding it to their program components score (the total of the trimmed mean for each of the five program components).

Teams at the junior and senior levels compete both a short program and a free skate. The points earned for each segment of the competition are added together for the final result. Teams in all other levels perform only a free skate.

SHORT PROGRAM

The short program for synchronized skating is a 2:50 program that includes required elements. Deductions are taken in the final score if these elements are not included. The order is optional.

JUNIOR REQUIREMENTS

The junior level short program includes five required elements:

- One block
- One wheel
- One intersection
- One moves element
- One no hold element

See RULE 7061 and relevant ISU communications for details.

SENIOR REQUIREMENTS

The senior level short program includes five required elements:

- One block
- One wheel
- One intersection
- One moves in the field element
- One no hold element

See RULE 7061 and relevant ISU communications for details.

FREE SKATE

A synchronized free skate contains numerous elements linked together by a variety of transitions. The free skate has a time limit of 4:30 for senior and 4:00 for junior.

FREE SKATE REQUIREMENTS:

JUVENILE:

- One block
- One circle
- One intersection
- One line
- One wheel
- One creative element

INTERMEDIATE:

- One circle
- One line
- One block
- One wheel
- One intersection
- One creative element
- One block step sequence or one circle step sequence

NOVICE:

- One circle
- One line
- One block
- One wheel
- One intersection
- One creative element
- One no hold element
- One block step sequence or one circle step sequence

JUNIOR:

- One line
- One block
- One wheel
- Two intersections
- One creative element
- One no hold element
- One spin or moves in the field element
- One circle element

SENIOR:

- One line
- One block
- One wheel
- Two intersections
- One no hold element
- One spin or moves in the field element
- One creative element
- One group lift
- One circle element

COLLEGIATE:

- One line
- One block
- One wheel
- Two intersections
- One creative element
- One no hold element
- One spin or moves in the field element
- One circle element

ADULT:

- One circle
- One line
- One block
- One wheel
- One intersection
- One creative element
- One block step sequence or one circle step sequence

MASTERS:

- One block
- One circle
- One intersection
- One line
- One wheel
- One creative element

TOTAL SCORE

The short program and free skate are typically skated on two different days. The scores are added together for a combined score to determine the winner.

Block

An element in which the skaters are arranged in a minimum of three parallel lines. The skaters may be arranged in straight lines, diagonal lines, curved lines or a circular pattern. Teams should cover half the length of the ice during the block. The lines of skaters should be straight and all the skaters evenly spaced. Features that make a block increase in difficulty are pivoting and changes of configuration.

Circle

There are several variations of the circle, including one circle, two circles or a circle inside a circle. The shape should be round, and spacing between skaters should be even. There should not be any visible pulling or tugging between skaters. Features that increase the difficulty include traveling, weaving and changes of rotational direction.

Intersection

An intersection occurs when one half of the team intersects the other half of the team. Skaters may do turns and steps at the point of intersection to increase the difficulty.

Line

There are several variations of the line, including one straight line, parallel lines or diagonal lines. Features that increase the difficulty include pivoting and interacting.

Creative Element

The creative element is a presentation of one or more creative and innovative movements, free skating elements (fe) and/or moves (fm) made in an interesting manner which reflects the music. Any synchronized skating program elements may be incorporated and the chosen movements may be executed at the same time, in syncopation or at different times. They may be performed as individual skaters, pairs or group of any size.

Moves in the field element

The moves in the field element is a sequence of movements that must include free skating moves such as spirals, spread eagles, Ina Bauers and other flowing moves with strong edges, connected with linking steps. A moves in the field element must include at least two different free skating moves.

◀ No hold element

A no hold element looks similar to a block step sequence except none of the skaters are connected to one another. The team must perform a series of turns and linking steps in four or five lines that travel over the entire ice surface on a diagonal or straight line. The skaters must hold their spacing without connecting, and everyone must do the steps in unison.

▲ Block step sequence

A block step sequence is a series of turns and linking steps performed by skaters while connected in a block shape. The difficulty of the element is determined by the difficulty of the turns completed within the sequence.

▲ Circle step sequence

A circle step sequence is a series of turns and linking steps performed by skaters in a connected or unconnected circle. The difficulty of the element is determined by the difficulty of the turns completed within the sequence.

▲ Spins

All skaters must perform the same spin in unison. They may perform the element in any formation they choose.

▲ Group lift

A group lift will only be performed by senior teams. Between one and four group lifts will be skated. Features that increase the difficulty include vaulting up and down from the lift, change of position of the lifted skater, balancing lift and rotation in both directions.

▲ Wheel

A wheel is an element during which all of the skaters rotate around a common point. It can be performed in many different formations such as those that include two to five spokes. All spokes of the wheel should be straight, and the lean of the skaters should be in the same direction. Teams increase difficulty by including changes of rotational direction, change of configuration and traveling.

Each year U.S. Figure Skating nominates approximately 10–15 high-achieving synchronized teams to the U.S. Synchronized Team. Each qualifying synchronized team receives funding and an assignment to an international competition. Teams are selected based primarily on their performances in the junior or senior level at the most recent U.S. Synchronized Skating Championships. Less than five percent of teams entering the qualifying competitive system will be named to Team USA.

There are four team levels: Team A, Team B, Team C and the Reserve Team. The primary difference between the levels is funding. The higher the envelope to which a team is assigned, the more financial support it receives. Teams A, B and C receive funding. Reserve teams do not receive a travel or training grant, but if they choose to accept their assignment, they have the opportunity to participate in an ISU-sanctioned international competition.

U.S. Figure Skating’s goal for the U.S. Synchronized Skating Team is to win as many medals as possible at international competitions. Teams assigned to the envelopes are given many tools to do so, including:

- U.S. Figure Skating-funded monitoring sessions
- Entry fees for international competitions.
- Team leaders and team physicians provided for international competitions.
- Synchronized Team Envelope Funding (STEF) ranging from $7,500–$15,000 per team.
- International travel grants ranging from $9,000–$16,000 per team.
- Team USA clothing grants ranging from $75–$150 per athlete.
- Airfare and housing expenses for all athletes qualifying for the World Synchronized Skating Championships and World Junior Synchronized Skating Championships.

icenetwork

U.S. Figure Skating and MLB Advanced Media, LP (MLBAM), the interactive media and Internet company of Major League Baseball, joined forces in 2007 to create icenetwork. The multi-year arrangement assigns all of U.S. Figure Skating's interactive media rights to icenetwork.

icenetwork was unveiled in August 2007, with news, video, athlete bios, schedules, results and more. All news, athlete information and fan-oriented material previously found on usfigureskating.org is now on icenetwork.com, while the organizational website is dedicated to providing information for U.S. Figure Skating's members, athletes, coaches, judges and officials. Subscribers to icenetwork.com receive access to domestic and international events, including every phase of the 2014 U.S. qualifying season, the 2013 ISU Grand Prix Series and an assortment of professional skating shows.

NOTE: Numbers next to team placements indicate the team's final score, at that event, under the international judging system.

FUN FACTS

- The collegiate level debuted in 1997 with three teams.
- In 1956, the Hockettes (Ann Arbor, Mich.) became the first synchronized skating team formed in the United States.
- The Fraserettes (Fraser, Mich.) won the first senior title at the U.S. Synchronized Skating Championships in 1984.
- The Haydenettes (Lexington, Mass.) have won the most U.S. Synchronized Skating titles (21).
- Miami University (Oxford, Ohio) was the first team to win the collegiate division in 1997. They went on to win eight consecutive titles.
- California Gold (Artesia, Calif.) is the first Pacific Coast Section team to win a medal at the senior level, earning pewter at the 2007 U.S. Synchronized Skating Championships.
- In the 2012-13 season, 579 teams registered with U.S. Figure Skating. These teams are divided into three geographic sections with 10 percent in the pacific coast, 50 percent in the midwest, and 40 percent in the east.

DEMOGRAPHICS

- Skaters on beginner, preliminary, pre-juvenile and juvenile teams are predominantly younger than 13 years old.
- Skaters at the open juvenile, intermediate, novice and junior levels are approximately 13–17 years old.
- The senior level is the most competitive level. Skaters are typically in their late teens or early 20s.
- 52 teams are registered in the open adult, adult or masters levels.
- There are more than 9,000 active synchronized skating athletes in the United States.
- 36 teams are registered in the open collegiate or collegiate levels.
- 23 teams are registered in levels (junior and senior) that may advance to ISU competitions.

Total synchronized skating teams registered in the United States for 2014 season:

556

PACIFIC COAST SECTION (38 teams)

MIDWESTERN SECTION (270 teams)

EASTERN SECTION (248 teams)

SYNCHRONIZED SKATING DREAM CAMPS

In 2011, U.S. Figure Skating began Synchronized Skating DREAM camps, separate one-day training camps modeled after the U.S. Synchronized Skating Training Festival. Held at locations nationwide, these camps help skaters from the beginner through juvenile levels improve their individual and synchronized skating skills. The program's staff includes U.S. Figure Skating Synchronized Skating head coaches and Team USA athletes who are members of the DREAM program.

LOCAL TEAMS

There are synchronized skating teams training and competing at various levels all over the United States. Unlike school sports, synchronized skating teams are typically formed from figure skating clubs that are member clubs of U.S. Figure Skating. U.S. Figure Skating member clubs are found at most rinks nationwide.

Synchronized skaters are talented figure skaters who enjoy participating in team sports. While synchronized skaters do not go on to professional teams, they enjoy the many benefits of participating in sport: challenge, hard work, achievement, friendships, fun, fitness and the opportunity to travel.

While there are not yet college scholarships available, synchronized skating is popular collegiately with more than 40 colleges offering club or varsity teams.

Beginner level synchronized skating teams typically practice one hour per week whereas teams at the most competitive levels, junior and senior, train between 15-20 hours per week. All team members must continue to maintain their skills by practicing individually in addition to team practices.

MEDIA OPPORTUNITIES

Members of the media are welcome to contact their local clubs to learn more about the sport and the many stories local clubs have to share.

Journalists can attend practices and competitions, arrange interviews with coaches and skaters, ask questions about the sport, take advantage of excellent visuals for TV broadcasts and still shots, or inquire about available B-roll and photographs. Clubs are helpful with assisting and educating the media about synchronized skating.

There are three ways to get in touch with local teams:

1. Use the contact information provided on the back cover of this guide.
2. Visit www.usfigureskating.org/clubsearch.asp and use the site to search your area of interest.
3. Contact U.S. Figure Skating at 719.635.5200.

SPONSOR'S CORNER: SUPPORTING YOUR LOCAL TEAM

The majority of synchronized skating teams perform at exhibitions or ice shows at local rinks. Feel free to stop by and observe, ask questions and learn about the sport.

Local businesses make great sponsors for synchronized skating teams. Most teams are willing to wear sponsor logos, include advertisements in programs of local competitions and ice shows, and publicly thank sponsors in the community and local newspapers.

Synchronized skating teams can also provide widespread publicity for sponsors through their national and international travel to competitions. The sport continues to grow, as does the number of athletes, parents, coaches and fans. Reaching out to this growing market will create noticeable benefits.
